—The following extract from the Mobile Register of May 7th shows that our citizens are enjoying themselves in the south: A party of fifteen gentlemen, consisting of Hon. F. Kimball, I. O. They further express their admiration of this beautiful and healthful climate, the floral decorations that adorn the pleasant homes, and the evidence of a hearty welcome and good cheer throughout the city extended to all visitors on this happy occasion, and predict for Mobile a bright and prosperous future under the guidance of a wise administrative policy of business enterprise.

—About the nicest thing a person can have in their house to discourage burglars, is the Yassar alarm bell. This is a spring lock in different shapes for different situations, and having connected with it something resembling an alarm clock with a loud, healthy voice. It is so arranged that anyone trying a door or window on which one of these bells is set, will wake up a gang that sounds like a dinner bell. It is made in three styles. The first is a regular door lock with the alarm connection; to be attached the same as any lock would be, and when once set there is no possibility of its being tampered with from the outside. Any pressure brought to bear upon the door sets off the alarm, which runs till the pressure stops, when it shuts down and gets ready for more business. The second is the same lock arranged for attachment to windows, and is the only alarm which allows the windows to be left open a short distance to admit air, without disturbing the apparatus. The last is an adaptation of the Yassar bolt to travelers' uses, it being supplied with set screws so as to be easily put on or taken off hotel doors. All who examine them admit that they are the most automatic night watchman in the market, and their low price combined with their efficiency and durability make them popular. For prices and further particulars enquire of Will O'Hare, agent, shop three doors above North of west side engine house.

Our Fire Ladders.

Promptly at 7:00 o'clock last evening, Roscoe Hook and Ladder company No. 3, with their apparatus, appeared at the Court street M. E. church block, for the purpose of giving the members of the common council and tax payers an opportunity of thoroughly inspecting the "outfit." Assistant Engineer Henry Black, formerly foreman of the hook and ladder company, being thoroughly posted regarding these hook and ladder equipments, was given charge of the raising of the ladders. The first raised was the 50 foot extension. This was quickly raised, but in raising, before the ladder touched the building, one of the side truss broke, and on close examination it was found to be dead pine. The ladder just touched the under side of the cornice of the building. Finally Mr. W. E. Spicer, assistant foreman of the company, ascended to the top of the ladder. Every one present condemned it as worthless for fire purposes, not being of sufficient strength to hold two men with a lead of hose, and not being long enough within fifteen or twenty feet, for such use. The other ladders, although light, were in better shape. Only four members of the council took interest enough in the matter to appear upon the ground and examine the ladders—while several hundred citizens congregated on the corners to see the exhibition and pass judgment. This ladder business is a serious one to consider, one that ought not to be decided in a moment, but thoroughly investigated, as there are many styles of ladders and trucks now in use, and while this department is greatly in need of better apparatus, those in authority should thoroughly understand the matter, finding just what they want, and buy it, even if it does cost money.

Several property owners, heretofore opposed to the expenditure of money for new apparatus, after witnessing the operation last evening, changed their minds, and are now in favor of giving the department something to work with, and say that while we are getting, get the best, which we are confident will be the result of a thorough investigation at the hands of the common council, who are disposed to better the condition of the department, if the "ladders" will only keep quiet.
